

SoyBooru Overview

Community:

SoyBooru's community is a little different from soyjak.party's one, though they both like soyjaks, most SoyBooru commenters do not actually post on soyjak.party, you can verify this by going to their post history. When making decisions, it should be treated as a different site.

Namefagging:

Unlike SP, SoyBooru always had name fields enabled. While this may bring unwanted attentionwhoring, it had actually brought some benefits to SoyBooru. Most of SoyBooru's active staff members were registered users, and the ones that I picked from SP's janitorial team were barely active. The booru's antis spam protection is also a bit weak, and in the case of tag wiping bot spam I had to lock some features to trusted registered users only. Not to mention that user accounts do enable some wanted features like favoriting posts, upvoting/downvoting, and private communication in the case of asking questions related to soyjak editing.

Staff members:

Most SoyBooru's staff members were very active on the booru, there are currently 2 approvers, 2 janitors, and 1 moderator.

This is an example of the message I sent to the approvers:

Message from dust

Hello,

Would you be interested in having an approver role here so that you can approve your posts immediately?

You will also be free to approve other posts that you do like as long as they're tagged but you won't be forced to do every single one.

Please respond to this message whether you agree or not, no extra information is necessary.

There are multiple staff roles on SoyBooru, and you can make as many custom ones as you want, the roles are:

Moderators:

The highest role on the site, similar to SP's moderator role, currently only given to RealAngeleno. This is the only role with access to user IPs.

Janitors/Helpers:

Second highest role on the site, similar to the janitor role on SP, currently only given to GemSmith (known as hotpockets99), and YaroslavTV. The difference between Janitors/Helpers is the naming only, as the janitor role was given to those who work on SP and SoyBooru at once. Ship (known as test711) had that role previously, but his account has been deleted.

YaroslavTV is the most active staff member on the site, I would've promoted him if he wasn't Ukrainian. Many people do not like him because he uploads furry stuff sometimes, but he has confirmed to me that he isn't a furry and only wants to preserve everything no matter how awful it is. He was very loyal to me and when I told him to stop doing something he immediately complied, he had applied to SP previously but was rejected. His Discord is YaroslavTV#3682 if you wish to communicate with him.

Approvers:

Approvers can only approve/disapprove images, they can not delete images or do anything else that a normal user can not do. Approvers are tasked with approving the images they uploaded mainly, but can approve other images if they wish to. Currently the only approvers are lifesucksthenyoudie, and Sectionalism.

You can view full user list at https://booru.soy/user_admin/list , and filter users by their roles too.

Banning Content:

If you ever wish to ban a specific type of content (e.g. furry posts), I highly advise that you keep the old posts and only ban the new posts that match a specific criteria, this is the policy that we followed when banning content and it has proven to work very well. I highly recommend against deleting old posts, since that would be irreversible.